Scargill repeats call:

Unite in action to defend all unions

WORKERS from all over the Manchester area brought their banners yesterday to join the 12,000-strong march through the town in support of the miners — see centre pages for more pictures

'No one should work after death of two miners'

Report: BEN RUDDER Photos: PETER ARKELL

NO TRADE unionist should still be working following the death of two miners killed fighting for jobs, NUM president Arthur Scargill told a rally in Manchester yesterday.

The rally was a climax to yesterday's North West TUC day of action which paralysed all rail services in the region and brought factory workers, bus drivers, health and local government workers, firemen and others out on strike and to demonstrations.

Lancashire area miners headed three marches during the day in Liverpool (see page 2), Manchester and St Helens.

Scargill spoke to a packed Free Trade Hall, and had to repeat his speech to thousands standing in the street outside.

He said: 'One thing I've got to say to the trade union movement, and to those in the power industry and the electricity industry, to those who represent the unions in those industries:

'When two miners died fighting for the right to work — not one of you should have gone to work until this dispute was over,' he said to loud cheers.

Scargill said miners had a right to demand industrial support from every worker because the future of democracy was at stake.

'The miners and their communities are not merely fighting for the right to work, they're not only fighting to save their jobs and their industry and communities, they are fighting for far more than that. They are fighting for you and they are fighting for me.

'If you value democracy, if you value a better life, if you value a life without the threat of nuclear war and if you value full employment you'll say with one voice: "We'll stand shoulder to shoulder with you until the end of the day the National Union of Mineworkers wins this dispute not only for themselves but for the whole movement.'

Scargill denied claims by Thatcher that the miners were to blame for the economic crisis and the rise in interest rates.

'But the culprit responsible for the increase in mortgage repayments is not the NUM. It's Margaret Thatcher and this Tory government.'

He urged workers to reject the monetarist philosophy of the Tories and to reject the ideology of 'supply and demand' which was the standpoint of MacGregor and the government.

Applause

'I don't care how much money they offer my membership, there isn't a price that one can offer to a man or woman to sell the job of their son and their daughter,' he said to loud applause.

He praised the solidarity action of dockers, seamen and railway workers saying it was the most important solidarity seen in any dispute since the World War II.

But he added: 'The tragedy is that the official movement, in many respects, has not responded.

'If the same response had been given by all unions as has been given by the seamen, ASLEF, NUR and the T&GWU we would have won this strike a great deal quicker,' he said.

He also attacked ISTC steel union leader Bill Sirs who had told Scargill that business contracts for the steel industry had to be met despite the miners' dispute.

'I tell you what contract you ought to honour, Bill — your contract with the working class and the trade union movement.'

He also attacked the intervention of the courts saying that every trade unionist should reject what the courts were saying about union rules and constitutions.

'There is one rule in the labour and trade union movement which supercedes all other considerations. When workers are fighting in an industrial dispute you don't cross a picket line.

Scargill also rejected demands that he criticise his members on the picket line.

'They talk about violence on the picket line — yes there is violence, police violence of a scale I've never seen in my life before. I will not be party to condemning those magnificent young men who represent this union,' he said.

And in a warning to all trade unionists he pointed to yesterday's 'Daily Telegraph' editorial which called on the government to ensure that the NUM 'is seen to be defeated'.

Scargill said: 'That's where these people stand. It's not about the issue of pit closures is it. Read what their organs themselves are reflecting from the government's position. They want to see trade unions weakened and rendered impotent.'

To succeed in this aim the government had spent a 'staggering' sum. Already it had cost nearly half a year's coal production valued at £2.1 billion with an additional £30 million a week for the higher oil burn and a further £900 million on interest and additional expenditure.

Docks strike talks break down

TALKS between port employers and officials of the Transport and General Workers Union broke down after nine hours last night as dockers at Felixstowe joined the national strike.

And the action in defence of the National Dock Labour Scheme will be stepped up with the shutdown of the port of Dover from Monday, which will hit ferry services.

At the talks in London both sides were understood to have discussed proposals from the British Steel Corporation whose decision to bring in scab contract labour to move iron ore supplies at Immingham provoked the national stoppage.

The BSC said that it is ready to train registered dockers to unload ore and claimed to have got agreement with the transport union at Immingham.

But transport union national officer John Connolly had warned that the ruling by the National Dock Labour Board that the BSC had breached the National Dock Labour Scheme would not be enough to end the strike.

The T&GWU wanted a guarantee that the employers would act to prevent further breaches of the scheme without reference to the board. But the National Association of Port Employers made it clear on Thursday night that it would not give such an assurance.

T&GWU workers at Felixstowe, which is not part of the National Dock Labour Scheme, decided to strike from midnight without taking a vote.

Instruction

About 800 of the 1,200-strong labour force attended a meeting in a quayside transit shed and union officials told them that a clear instruction to strike had been given by the T&GWU at national level.

Meanwhile passengers on the luxury liner, the 'QE2', which was diverted from Southampton to Cherbourg, were flown from France to Bournemouth's Hurn Airport.

Mortgage hike to 12½ per cent

A FINANCIAL HAND GRENADE

says Labour's spokesman

BY JOHN SPENCER

THE BASIC cost of home loans was increased yesterday from 10.25 to 12.5 per cent. The announcement from the Building Societies Association means a £20.60 a month increase in repayments on the average new loan of £20,000.

For every £1,000 borrowed, home buyers will have to find an extra £1.03 a month.

The 2.25 per cent rise in the mortgage rate is the largest increase in nearly five years and follows three rises in bank base rates since the societies last changed their terms.

It comes into operation immediately for new borrowers and from August 1 for existing ones.

Labour's housing spokesman John Fraser said it was like 'chucking a financial hand grenade' into every form of housing.

The BSA maintained that it would have imposed an 'unreasonable burden' on borrowers if it had pushed up mortgage rates to 13 per cent in line with bank interest rates.

But 12.5 per cent is quite damaging enough for the Tory government. Only a few weeks ago Downing Street was leaning heavily on the building societies to stop the rate going into double figures.

Meeting

The decision to raise the rate was taken at a very short meeting of the 32-man BSA council in London. It no longer recommends rates but 'advises' them, so individual societies wil now have to make their own formal decisions.

In its statement the BSA said the increase in other interest rates had reduced inflow of cash and threatened 'a serious shortage of mortgage funds'.

Labour's housing spokesman John Fraser said the rise was a stab in the back for the home owners who supported Thatcher at the last election.

'It will place many new house buyers in acute financial trouble,' he said.

'It will also lead to a reduction in council spending on housing because the government is making councils rely on money coming from tenants buying their own homes and getting building society mortgages.

'The rise therefore brings the threat of a moratorium on spending on council housing and grants even closer.

Housing

'The hike in interest rates, which increases public expenditure, is like chucking a financial hand grenade into every kind of housing programme — public or private.

'The government should introduce measures to protect the construction industry from further decimation and home seekers from being priced out of the market.'

● THE retail price index remained steady at 5.1 per cent in June, the same as the previous month, according to figures from the Employment Department.

Officials expect it could fall in July, but the effects of yesterday's mortgage announcement will push it up to around 5.5 per cent in August.

Prices rose by 0.3 per cent in June, caused mainly by increases for food and transport. An extra 1p on a pint of milk and the increased cost of sweets and chocolates, along with higher petrol prices, were mainly responsible.

Yesterday's rise in home loan rates will take inflation to 5.2 per cent at the end of the year against the government's target of 4.5 per cent.

NUR back seamen's union

LEADERS of the National Union of Railwaymen yesterday threw their weight behind the seamen's union in the fight against the privatisation of the Sealink ferry company.

The NUR executive has instructed its 3,000 members on the ferries to back the ban on the carriage of all freight vehicles by Sealink, which the NUS imposed from midnight.

NUR general secretary Jimmy Knapp said the union was deeply concerned at the government's plan to hive off Sealink — a move which could destroy 2,500 jobs.

'This union has been part of the campaign to defend this important national asset and our national executive committee today instructed all members to fully support the blacking of freight lorries on ferry services instituted by the National Union of Seamen,' he said.

With Sealink normally carrying 16,000 freight vehicles a week, the ban is expected to cause large tail-backs at several major ports.

It will stop freight travelling through the ports of Dover, Folkestone, Newhaven, Portsmouth, Weymouth, Fishguard, Holyhead, Stranraer and Harwich to cross-Channel ports, the Channel Islands, the north of Ireland, the Irish Republic and Holland.

Bristol docks at a standstill

THE BRISTOL docks were yesterday at a standstill following Thursday's decision to continue the dispute over the Dock Labour Scheme. There was no cargo movement whatsoever.

Pete Butler, shop steward at Bristol docks, told News Line: 'The strike committee met today and granted a special dispensation to the motor vessel "St Helena" to sail with vital medical supplies and passengers. This ship is the only lifeline for the community on this isolated island.

'The commercial cargo, however, will not be carried and will remain in Bristol for the duration of the strike. The handling of medical supplies and passenger baggage will be done by union labour on a voluntary basis. Any payment for this work will be given to charity.

'Subject to this arrangement the "St Helena" will sail on Saturday morning.'

Hartlepool NALGO strike

MEMBERS of the local government union NALGO are on strike in Hartlepool in the north east over the threatened dismissal of former deputy borough planning officer Arun Sathe.

This follows a one-day strike by the 390 members of NALGO's Hartlepool branch last Friday which brought the council to a standstill.

The Commission for Racial Equality is planning to take Sathe's case to an industrial tribunal under the Race Relations Act.

Hartlepool borough council advertised Sathe's job during a reorganisation last year and appointed someone less qualified and with less experience, the union says.

Since the beginning of the year Sathe has effectively been without a job and the council has threatened to dismiss him if he will not accept redundancy.

NALGO is demanding suitable alternative employment for Sathe. The 21 NALGO members on strike are in the planning division of Hartlepool council's technical services department.

NALGO north east district officer Barry Howarth said: 'The council's treatment of Mr Sathe has been callous in the extreme and we will not accept it.'

Pickets arrested

TEN supporters of the City of London Anti-Apartheid group were arrested yesterday during their regular weekly picket of South Africa House. It brings the number arrested over the last five weeks to 90. (See further story on page 6).

NUJ walk-out at 'Sun' over pay

JOURNALISTS at the 'Sun' newspaper walked out on strike yesterday over pay for the first time ever.

Pickets were on the main entrance in Bouverie Street in London and the stoppage was also being fully supported at the newspaper's offices in Manchester and Glasgow.

The 230 NUJ members have rejected an offer of 7.5 per cent plus £500 and have asked for a rise of £3,000 plus the 'going rate' for Fleet Street.

In a leaflet distributed by pickets, NUJ FoC Malcolm Withers explained: 'Our dispute is over a pay promise made three times in 15 years. We reckon we have been patient enough and that is why we are on an official dispute at the "Sun" for the first time.'

The paper's editor Kelvin MacKenzie boasted that the 'Sun' would appear because he was producing it with the assistance of three members of senior management.

But the journalists have appealed to other staff at the paper not to touch work not normally produced by the four executives.

The strikers want all work to be vetted by NUJ chapel officials and have warned against possible moves to use material marked for the 'News of the World' in the 'Sun'.

Pickets collapsed in laughter when they read Mackenzie's provocative jibe at their action. In condemning the strike, he had claimed: 'There are some of the fattest pickets in Britain on our doorstep at the moment. They certainly look very healthy.'

'Absolute rubbish' was how one striker described the editor's claim that editorial staff are on an average salary of £19,500 a year.

A few minutes later a Schweppes delivery van drew up, but the driver immediately agreed to respect the picket line and left wishing the strikers success in their dispute.

Maxwell takes over 'Mirror' minefield

SWAGGERING millionaire publisher Robert Maxwell has arrived in Fleet Street with a bang. When ousted 'Mirror' group chairman Clive Thornton arrived at work yesterday morning, he found Maxwell sitting at his desk.

Maxwell executed a lightning takeover on Thursday night after making an offer that Reed International could not refuse.

He is paying £113.4 million for six of the country's biggest-selling newspapers — the 'Daily Mirror', 'Sunday Mirror', 'Sunday People', 'Sporting Life' and two Scottish papers, the 'Daily Record' and 'Sunday Mail'.

Thornton, the Abbey National chief who became Mirror chairman only six months ago, heard the news from a Reed executive on the telephone at two minutes after midnight on Thursday night.

When he arrived yesterday to write his resignation and collect his papers, Thornton found that Maxwell had already taken over his oak-panelled office.

Thornton said farewell to a handful of staff and left for home saying he needed 'a damn good rest'.

Consent

The sale will not require the Trade Secretary's consent under the Fair Trading Act, according to Information Minister Kenneth Baker.

Under Maxwell's ownership, the Mirror group is going to turn into an industrial minefield.

His takeover is opposed by the National Union of Journalists chapel, while the National Graphical Association and the SOGAT machine chapel have withdrawn undertakings they gave to Thornton not to call lightning strikes.

Yesterday's 'Daily Record' published a statement from the federated chapels of the two Glasgow-based newspapers saying they intended 'to mount the strongest possible campaign to prevent our papers falling into the hands of Mr Maxwell'.

The NGA national leadership issued a statement saying it was 'appalled' at the sale to Maxwell. It said: 'This decision by Reed International flies in the face of all the promises they made that they would never sell Mirror Group Newspapers to one person.'

Effects

It would be raising within the labour and trade union movement the effects that Maxwell's ownership of the papers would have on press freedom.

SOGAT '82 general secretary Bill Keys said the sale was 'a sad day' for the British press. 'It appears that profit comes before people,' he said.

He said that since Maxwell took charge of the British Printing and Communications Corporation, there had been a 29-per-cent reduction in SOGAT '82 members.

The NUJ executive has demanded that the sale of the Mirror group to Maxwell be revoked. NUJ general secretary Ken Ashton is to approach the NGA and SOGAT '82 with a view to testing the legality of the takeover with the Office of Fair Trading.

Ashton said: 'Once again, profit has been given a priority out of all proportion to the considerations due to people.'

In contrast to the fears of the trade unions, Labour Party leader Neil Kinnock said the history of single-proprietor ownership was not a happy one.

'Mr Maxwell could be the exception to the rule,' he said.

LECH GIVEN LAW DEGREE

LECH WALESA, leader of the Polish trade union Solidarity, yesterday became a graduate of a Scottish university. He received the honorary degree Doctor of Laws at Dundee University, but was not present or represented at the ceremony.

Earlier this year he wrote to the university accepting the degree offer and said he would like to visit Scotland if possible. A university spokesman said Walesa had said he could not attend the ceremony if he could not be certain of being allowed back into Poland. The same fear had kept him from the Nobel Peace Prize award ceremony.

Briefs

A TOTAL of 8.9 million people watched the Wimbledon men's tennis final on BBC TV, making it the Corporation's second most popular programme in the week ended July 8, according to viewing figures published yesterday. Only 'That's Life' with 12.1 million had a bigger BBC audience.

WATER chiefs warned yesterday that recent rain has not ended the crisis in drought-hit areas of England and Wales. Six out of the 10 water authorities are now restricting the use of water, with nearly nine million people banned from using hosepipes.

CHIEF officers in the water industry will have salaries in the £31,850 range after winning a 5-per-cent increase back-dated to the beginning of the month, NALGO announced yesterday. The union also negotiated a 4.5-per-cent increase for canal workers, bringing the typical salary from £5,500 to £5,802.

BERNARD YOUENS, who plays Coronation Street's rogue Stan Ogden, has had his left leg amputated. Bernard, 68, has been in hospital since April being treated for arthritis. He suffered a major stroke in May and was transferred from a private hospital in Manchester to Salford Royal hospital.

Bad distribution cause of starvation

STARVATION is rife in the world because of bad distribution and not because there is a global shortage, according to a report out yesterday.

Current world grain production is sufficient to feed one billion more people than now inhabit the globe and the solution to the problem of feeding the 500 million people suffering from malnutrition is a matter of money to allow the food to be moved, says 'Agra Europe', the EEC agricultural intelligence bulletin.

'But there is a more important and longer-term problem — the lack of effective policies to promote the development and expansion of food production in the less developed countries.'

Inadequate funding and inept policies in these countries are unlikely to lead to any significant increase in own food production over the next 20 years, so the demand for aid will continue.

'The EEC could provide more food aid to help the starving for less money by purchasing food at lower prices on the world market instead of producing supplies for food aid itself,' the report says.

'Only the existence of EEC food supplies costing 30-50 per cent more than supplies available on the world market forces the EEC to use these surpluses for food aid.'

PINT UP!

BEER prices are set to rise by up to 2p a pint during the next two months. This means that in the course of 1984, the price of the mythical average pint will have risen by 4p or 6.2 per cent to 69p, according to analysts Buckmaster and Moore.

A BRITISH Royal Air Force pilot was killed yesterday when his single-seater Lightning Interceptor plane crashed during a training exercise in north West Germany.

Last two Libyan diplomats expelled

LIBYA'S two remaining diplomatic representatives stationed in London have been expelled, the Foreign Office said yesterday. A spokesman implied they had been involved in inter-Libyan disputes in Britain.

The two men worked from the Saudi Arabian Embassy's Libyan Interests Section since Whitehall's break with Tripoli after the April siege at the Libyan People's Bureau.

They were ordered out on a 14-day deadline on July 7, 'for activities inconsistent with their status'.

The announcement is the first official confirmation of the expulsions. The Foreign Office were probably hoping to keep the expulsions quiet until after they had happened, but reports in yesterday's newspapers forced the government to confirm its move against the diplomats.

Replacements for the two men — Mohammed Madhoun and Abdul Khairallah — would be considered.

The siege at the Bureau in St James' Square ended when all 30 Libyans inside were escorted from the building and then flown to Tripoli. None were arrested in connection with shots fired in the Square towards anti-Libyan students, which also hit and killed WPc Yvonne Fletcher.

WEATHER

RAIN at first in northern Ireland and west areas of Scotland will spread into all other areas, whilst brighter, showery weather will follow into western Scotland, northwest England and Wales and northern Ireland. It will be generally rather cool or cool. Winds will be generally westerly veering northwesterly moderate to fresh.

Outlook for the following 48 hours: Showery weather extending to all areas first and then becoming a little warmer

FIGHTS FLARE IN ISRAELI ELECTIONS

SHAMIR

TEL AVIV — Israel's election campaign is starting to hot up. This week the police had to break up fist fights and detain hecklers at election rallies given by Labour Party leaders.

Some people were hurt in the Tel Aviv suburb of Ramat Hasharon as anti-Labour thugs tried to disrupt an election speech by Labour Party leader Shimon Peres.

On the same evening, in the northern border town of Kiryat Shemona, police arrested six ultra-right-wing Zionists trying to break up a lecture given by Yitzhak Shamir, the former Labour leader.

Earlier this week a Peres meeting in the northern town of Tiberias was thrown into panic when Likud supporters started throwing rocks and bottles. Police made five arrests.

Bloc

With polling only nine days away on July 23, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's Likud bloc is starting to overhaul the Labour lead. A 'Maariv' newspaper poll predicted 47 seats for Labour and 37 for Likud in the 120-seat Knesset.

Previous polls had given Labour a commanding 15-seat lead.

The election has been dominated by the country's economic crisis, with manual and professional workers engaging in a spate of strikes to grab wage increases before the next government takes office.

With inflation at 400 per cent, and forecast to hit 1,000 per cent by December and a $25 billion foreign debt, the Zionist regime is virtually bust.

When Menachem Beigin's Likud came to government in 1977, inflation was 28 per cent but it had been driven up to 200 per cent by the time he resigned last year and went into isolation.

During Shamir's nine-month term of office inflation has leapt from 200 to 400 per cent.

Labour's television advertisements show people stirring a cup of coffee with 1,000 shekel notes, Israel's highest denomination bill. A background voice says: 'It's cheaper than buying a spoon.'

BY A FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT

The inflationary crisis has resulted in the emergence of 'the man with the suitcase', or 'Kalman' as he has been dubbed in financial circles.

'Kalman', who is an employee of the Central Bank of Israel, regularly appears on Tel Aviv's Lilienblum Street, the centre of the black money market, to sell US dollars.

He sells the crisp new 'green backs' straight out of his suitcase in order to try and stem the collapse of the Israeli shekel.

Shamir has surprised many of his supporters by offering Shimon Peres a proposal to form a coalition government. This idea was first advanced by Finance Minister Yigal Cohen-Orgad and former minister Yigal Hurvitz.

Peres has rejected the offer and is advocating negotiations with the PLO over the West Bank and related issues, withdrawal of the occupation forces from Lebanon and cutting back the colonising programme on the West Bank.

State

In retaliation, Likud has attempted to portray the Labour Party as the enemy of the Israeli state. It has used full-page photographs of PLO chairman Yassir Arafat in newspaper advertisements with the caption: 'Arafat would vote Labour'.

Labour's plans also include the abolition of the wages-prices adjustment scheme, pruning the $20 billion budget and the introduction of a 'social contract' with the unions.

These austerity measures have largely been dictated by Washington which has been pressurising the Israeli authorities to put an end to the 'spend, spend, spend' policies of the past 10 years.

The US government will donate aid worth $2.7 billion to Israel this year, the equivalent of $658 for every Israeli citizen.

Racist election advertisement

TEL AVIV — The election advertisement shows Jewish blood dripping on to a tiled floor. Then the voice of Rabbi Meir Kahane says of the Arabs: 'Just let me deal with them.'

It is part of the election propaganda of the Kach party, headed by the American-born rabbi.

His policy is to force the Arab population out of Israel to establish a 'Jews only state'. He also demands a ban on sexual relations between Jews and Arabs.

Asked how he would encourage Arabs to leave Israel, Kahane told reporters: 'When they hear on the radio that Meir Kahane is defence minister, they won't need much urging.'

Some Israeli newspapers have condemned Kach's advertising saying it is 'racist, dangerous poison' reminiscent of Nazi Germany's anti-Semitic propaganda.

Jerusalem mayor Teddy Kollek expressed shame and anger over Kach's 'racist incitement which should hurt every proud Jew'.

● NEW York businessman Robert Jacobs announced this week he was setting up a fund for the defence of Israeli soldiers charged with crimes against the Arabs.

The real estate broker said he was giving $100,000 as the first donation. The fund is supported by New York-born Kahane.

BEIGIN

Talks denied

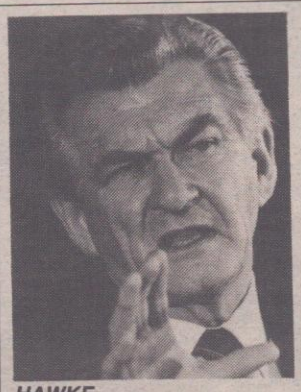

MAPUTO — The Mozambican authorities have denied reports that a senior minister held talks recently in Europe with a representative of its imperialist-backed opponents in the Mozambican National Resistance (MNR).

The report came from the right-wing Lisbon daily 'O Dia'. It said that a meeting had taken place in London between the Minister of State for Economic Affairs, Jacinto Veloso, and the MNR.

The President's office said that Veloso had not been out of Mozambique since his June 30 meeting in Maputo with the South African Foreign Minister, Roelof 'Pik' Botha.

Veloso was in Europe in June, but a government official said there was no meeting with the MNR during the trip.

The MNR has been waging a terrorist war against the Mozambican government since 1977.

CANBERRA — The right wing of the Australian Labour Party led by Prime Minister Bob Hawke routed its opponents at this week's stormy annual conference.

Hawke, a former trade union leader who led Labour to office 16 months ago, stopped moves to halt uranium mining, close United States bases and keep out foreign banks.

He ended the week by blocking a left-wing attempt to ensure Australians had the majority investment in the country's mineral projects.

The party instead voted to seek 51 per cent Australian equity in projects only 'where feasible'.

His vote-winning among the 99 delegates drew anger from the left. Leftists were incensed by the vote allowing continued uranium mining, despite protests over its application for making nuclear weapons.

One anti-uranium delegate burned his party membership ticket in front of delegates at the conference.

Arrested

Meanwhile six protesters trying to stop a $28 million shipment of uranium from Australia to Western Europe were arrested in Darwin yesterday.

The four women and two men arrested were among 30 protesters who attempted to stop trucks delivering uranium yellowcake to the carrier 'Clydebank' for shipment to Britain and West Germany.

There are plans to harass the 'Clydebank' today when it leaves port with five boats crewed by members of the Greenpeace conservation group, Women for Survival and the Northern Territory Peace Council.

Greens leader won't quit

BONN — Petra Kelly, the 36-year-old leader of the Greens, has refused a party instruction to quit her seat in the Bundestag (parliament).

She is defying one of the stated principles of the Greens that its parliamentary representatives should be rotated every two years.

Rotation is intended to keep Green MPs true to the party's ideals by removing them before they have time to become professional politicians or part of the Establishment.

But Kelly and some of her faction have rejected rotation as unworkable, self-defeating and naive.

She told reporters she would not give up her seat because she needed the remaining two years to carry out her political aims.

However, she said she would not be a candidate in the 1987 general election, West German radio reported.

When Kelly helped found the party in the 1970s she described it as 'an anti-party party'.

Since taking her seat in the Bundestag she has been in growing conflict with the 'fundamentalist' Greens.

Despite her refusal to resign her seat, Kelly said she intended to remain a member of the Greens parliamentary faction.

Border fighting continues

HANOI — Fighting continued along the China-Vietnam border yesterday as Vietnamese troops fought to regain strategic ground seized by Chinese troops last April.

The fighting erupted after a lull of several weeks as Hanoi radio said the Chinese had also begun regimental-level border provocations against Laos.

Hanoi's broadcast said Chinese troops had started the provocations against Laos since President Reagan's visit to Peking in May and Chinese Defence Minister Zhang Aiping's Washington trip last month.

Vietnamese authorities said Chinese troops had fired 200,000 shells against Vietnamese troops and territory since they provoked the war in April.

Hundreds of people, including 'predominantly old people, women and children' had been killed and wounded.

The Chinese border provocations were launched in April to divert Vietnamese forces fighting a war against Peking-backed counter-revolutionaries in Kampuchea.

That war of attrition is backed by Peking and the pro-imperialist Association of South-East Asian Nations (ASEAN) who have aligned themselves against the Vietnam-backed Heng Samrin regime in Kampuchea.

The Peking Stalinists yesterday expressed their 'delight' that the ASEAN meeting in Jakarta, Indonesia, this week had rejected talks with Hanoi on Kampuchea.

Public protests banned by Gandhi

NEW DELHI — Public protest was banned in the northern territories of Jammu and Kashmir and in Punjab yesterday as national opposition mounted against Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's military measures.

Ousted Chief Minister Farouq Abdullah has pledged to lead the annual Martyrs' Day march to commemorate the death of 30 people in a 1931 uprising

He said the march would go ahead in defiance of a round-the-clock curfew on Srinagar, the Jammu and Kashmir capital, and the arrival yesterday of four transport carriers with paramilitary reinforcements.

'If there is any bloodshed, the responsibility will be with the government,' he said.

The 1931 demonstration was led by his father, the legendary 'Lion of Kashmir' Sheikh Mohammed Abdullah, in protest against Hindu rule in the predominantly Moslem state.

Six Indian politicians, including Mrs Gandhi's estranged daughter-in-law and political foe Maneka Gandhi, who arrived in Srinagar to back Abdullah, were besieged by troops at their hotel.

About 2,000 paramilitary troops surrounded Abdullah's National Conference Party (NCP) headquarters and more than 350 NCP supporters were detained overnight.

In New Delhi, the chief ministers of four states walked out of a key meeting on the economy and called on President Zail Singh to urge him to dismiss the Gandhi-backed new Chief Minister of Jammu and Kashmir, Ghulam Muhammad Shah.

They described the coup against the freely elected Abdullah as 'against all democratic norms, propriety and convention and a deliberate subversion of the verdict of the state's electorate'.

In Punjab, the puppet state government under military authority banned all Sikh protest groups from marching on the Golden Temple of Amritsar.

Thirty-two Sikhs were arrested yesterday in a military operation designed to stop a threatened mass protest at the temple.

Durban bomb explosion

DURBAN — A powerful bomb explosion killed four people, all black, and injured 21 in a Durban industrial suburb yesterday.

The car bomb explosion caused extensive damage to buildings and cars in the area and left a huge pall of black smoke.

Blast

Law and Order Minister Louis Le Grange told parliament the blast was almost identical to other African National Congress attacks in the area.

REAGAN POISED TO CUT STEEL IMPORTS

REAGAN

WASHINGTON — The US International Trade Commission (ITC) has given President Reagan 60 days, until September 24, to impose strict curbs on steel imports.

The ITC's deadline is calculated to force Reagan to act at the height of the election campaign to extract maximum advantage for the powerful but slump-hit steel producers' lobby.

It has drawn an immediate reaction from Eurofer, the umbrella group for most of the Common Market (EEC) steel exporters, which has threatened to slap counter-restrictions against US exports.

Eurofer director Han Vorwerk warned on Thursday any such trade wall would jeopardise the EEC's 1982 voluntary export restrictions.

'Whatever the final decision, the US should not touch the 1982 agreement because, if they do, it is either a cause to terminate the agreement or to fight for retaliation or other measures,' Vorwerk said.

The EEC had cut back 27 per cent on steel exports to the US and Japan had agreed to an 18 per cent cut under the arrangement, Vorwerk said.

The ITC, alarmed by

BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

the fact that total imported steel products have grabbed up to 25 per cent of the US steel market, has demanded that the boom be lowered on these imports.

Tariffs

It has proposed a combination of higher tariffs and quotas on steel products from abroad, ranging from 15 to 28.9 per cent to hit semi-finished steel, carbon steel, sheet and strip products, galvanised steel, steel plate and structural steel.

US companies bought a total of $4.3 billion worth of carbon steel from abroad last year. EEC steel sales to the US are still worth $1.5 billion to $2 billion each year.

British Steel Corporation (BSC) will be one of the hardest hit by import curbs.

It is already pressing ahead with plans to shut down one of its five integrated steeworks.

BSC chairman Robert Haslam revealed in an annual report released this week that the miners' strike had hit the steelmaker severely and it could no longer survive unless the Tory government increased its £275 million subsidy.

The 1983-1984 trade losses were £128 million despite the fact that BSC had cut a $318 million loss for 1982-83 by £190 million, Haslam said.

The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), in a report on world steel trade published this week, blamed Asian and Latin American countries for increasing their steel sales to the US by up to 100 per cent last year.

It was a wretched attempt to find a scapegoat in the trade war that has erupted between the major industrialised countries fighting for markets in world slump conditions.

Police round up 400 Tamils

JAFFNA — More than 400 Tamils have been rounded up since the Jayewardene regime held talks with Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in New Delhi a fortnight ago.

National Security Minister Lalith Athulathmudali this week accused the Tamils of being 'Tamil Nadu-trained terrorists'.

As backing for the brutal racist campaign against the movement for Tamil Eelam (Tamil Nation), and in order to intimidate them, he said the Indian government had given assurances not to interfere in Sri Lanka's affairs.

Mrs Gandhi had guaranteed that Indian troops would not be sent to Sri Lanka in defence of the Tamils, he told an audience of students in the Dambulla district on Monday.

Proof of this guarantee was that Hindi newspapers had begun highlighting the Aryan origins of the Sinhala people and northern Indians, he said.

Lech barred from trial

WARSAW — Police yesterday barred Solidarity leader Lech Walesa from the start of the trial of four dissident intellectual advisers to the banned free trade union who are accused of trying to overthrow the rule of the bureaucracy.

There was a brief confrontation in front of Warsaw's military court before Walesa climbed back into his car and drove off with Solidarity officials.

About 100 supporters of Solidarity watched the incident along with western journalists who were also refused entry to the trial of the KOR leaders Jacek Kuron, Adam Michnik, Henryk Wujek and Zbigniew Roamszewski.

The area round the court was thick with police when Walesa drove up with former Solidarity official Andrzej Celinski.

When he tried to enter the courtyard, a police officer stepped forward to block the gate and said: 'You cannot enter Mr Walesa. Please go away.'

Walesa at first refused and threatened to camp on the pavement till he was allowed to attend the trial, then changed his mind and left.

Walesa said in an interview earlier in the week that he would try and attend the trial.

'As far as I know, they are accused of activities which I chaired,' he said. 'For the whole of the trial, according to my ability, I will always want to be with them . . . I was the chairman and it is my job to be with them. I am responsible for everything.'

Ashamed

Walesa added: 'I am ashamed that the trial is actually happening. Very many people share my opinion. They (the defendants) are hostages for us and our cause.'

Speaking from his mother-in-law's home the day before the trial, Walesa declared that even if Poles were barred from the trial: 'I think the story will seep through the walls; the walls will scream about the injustice.

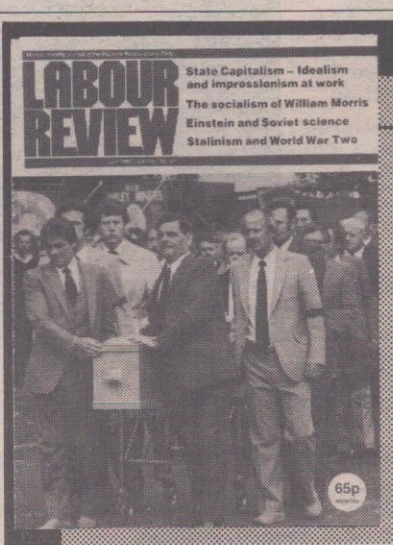

'The whole country will get to know the truth and the whole country will hope for them — only a few individuals can be in disagreement.'

Only lawyers, members of the families of the accused and Polish journalists were allowed to attend yesterday.

Most of yesterday's hearing was taken up with the reading of the 6,000-word indictment which said the accused urged the use of violence to overthrow the government and tried to break Poland's alliance with the Soviet Union. All four have said they are innocent.

Defence lawyers said the trial might be adjourned until the completion later this month of celebrations to mark the 40th anniversary of the bureaucracy's rule.

The four accused have been in jail since December 1981, when martial law was declared.

DEMAND TO DISCIPLINE CHATER

TONY CHATER

BY ALEX MITCHELL

COMMUNIST Party branches are calling on this weekend's meeting of the executive committee to take disciplinary action against 'Morning Star' editor Tony Chater and his assistant David Whitfield.

Resolutions from the branches have been bombarding party headquarters bitterly attacking the way the Chater faction orchestrated last month's annual general meeting of the People's Press Printing Society.

Most complain about the way the Glasgow shareholders' meeting was closed down preventing a discussion on the resolutions and disenfranchising the whole of the Scottish area in the crucial elections to the PPPS management committee.

Others protest about the arbitrary decision not to hold a sectional meeting of the AGM in Wales and the way in which the 'Morning Star' was blatantly used for electioneering purposes in the PPPS elections.

At least six branches accuse Chater and Whitfield of violating the resolution passed at last November's 38th party congress calling for the restoration of the former relationship between the party and the daily paper.

They cite how the editors and some members of the PPPS management committee have broken the 'spirit and letter' of the resolution by opposing party candidates in the PPPS elections, dismissing party loyalists like George Matthews and Bill Wainwright from the staff of the 'Morning Star' and censoring party statements and pro-party letters in the paper.

Action

There are calls on the executive committee to invoke disciplinary action, up to and including expulsion.

One of the recommendations from this week's political committee is that the executive should set up a sub-committee to monitor the content of the 'Morning Star'. The findings would be used to make a case against the editors for breaching the party's ultra-reformist policy, the 'British Road to Socialism'.

Don Brayford, one of the party's leading members in the Midlands, calls on the executive not to delay action against those who violate congress decisions.

In the latest issue of 'Focus', Brayford says the disrupted relationship between the party and the 'Morning Star' is the result of 'Trojan Horse' penetration of the PPPS management committee. ('Focus', No 20, July 1984)

He says that 'all the past experiences of the party underlines that delay in handling organised disruptive activities, i.e. factional activities, or of being blind to, or condoning by delays in handling, any breach of our democratic centralism, results in long term harm to the party itself'.

GCHQ union members demonstrate

DEFIANT union members demonstrated outside the Cheltenham GCHQ spy centre yesterday during a visit by Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe.

Long queues of cars built up as the protesters handed out leaflets condemning the Tory decree banning union membership for the 7,000 workers at the Cheltenham base and its outstations around the country.

At least 150 civil servants, organised by the GCHQ trade unions, have refused to accept the £1,000 bribe to sign away their basic rights.

In a further act of intimidation, the government has now ruled that workers who have refused to sign will be compulsorily transferred or sacked.

As Howe's black limousine swept past a group of 20 placard-carrying protesters on the gates of the Oakley complex he was greeted by booing and jeering.

No official reason was given for the visit. But Ralph Groves, a full-time official of the Council of Civil Service Unions, said he believed that Howe had come to check on the formation of a state-controlled staff association at the centre.

Groves said: 'He is here to see that everything is OK but clearly it is not the case as the staff association is having difficulty getting off the ground and the GCHQ trade unions are still here. We will not go away and we are prepared for a long campaign.'

He described the visit as 'insensitive' as a decision is expected soon on a court action in which the unions have challenged the legality of Thatcher's decree.

Groves said morale at GCHQ was at an all-time low 'as a result of an unnecessary, incompetently handled attempt to improve national security'.

Meeting

A protest meeting was held at lunchtime at a nearby playing field, which was addressed by TUC deputy general secretary Norman Willis.

Willis, who is a contender for the post of TUC general secretary when Len Murray retires, said the issue might be taken to the European Court of Human Rights.

Boy killed in 'fire trap' housing estate

EIGHT-year-old Nicholas Christie died in a fire at his home on the Mount Pleasant estate, Winsford, Cheshire, last Wednesday morning.

Neighbours who helped his parents, Brian and Kathleen Christie, and his younger sister Angela and brother Mark, to escape the blaze were unable to reach his bedroom.

Neighbour Steve Uren helped to coax Kathleen to jump into her back garden.

'It was a shocking sight — a woman in her nightie petrified with fear,' he said. 'Not only were there flames lapping around her feet, but the wall behind her was burning as well.'

Steve said that he and his wife heard a bang, breaking glass and screams for help at about 1a.m.

He ran next door to phone the Fire Brigade but the phone was out of order.

By the time he got to the house, which he said must have been about two minutes after the first alarm, every room was blazing with thick black smoke pouring from the bedrooms.

Next-door neighbour Arthur Cogley praised the actions of neighbours who made efforts to rescue Nicholas.

In April last year a mother and her two young daughters were killed when fire swept through their house on the nearby St Johns estate.

● NEWS Line will be producing a full report on Monday including pictures and interviews with some of the tenants on their 'fire death trap' housing.

Assault charge dismissed

AN ASSAULT charge against Andy Higginbottom, joint secretary of the City of London Anti-Apartheid group, has been dismissed by Bow Street magistrates.

Higginbottom faced charges on Thursday of 'assaulting a police officer in the execution of his duty' after an incident on March 4.

Two police officers stopped him in the subway of Charing Cross underground on the grounds that he was of 'vagrant appearance' and carrying a new shoulder bag which they thought 'suspicious'.

The police claimed in court that Higginbottom punched one of them twice while he was being taken away to the police van.

Higginbottom had just left a Youth CND demonstration in Trafalgar Square.

The magistrate, Mr Singleton, dismissed the case before hearing the defence. He said that the police had no reasonable cause to be suspicious of the defendant and thus it was an unlawful arrest.

Evidence

The police were not 'in the execution of their duty' and therefore the evidence of alleged assault need not be heard.

The magistrate added: 'The superintendent at Cannon Row should advise his officers to be more circumspect in dealing with members of the public.' He awarded costs of £517 against the Metropolitan Police.

On legal advice, Higginbottom will lay complaints against the police and is considering prosecuting them for unlawful arrest, false imprisonment and malicious prosecution.

After the trial, he said police harassment had increased since his arrest, with 84 people now facing charges after demonstrating outside the South African embassy in Trafalgar Square.

Care-leavers homeless

ABOUT 7,000 young people leaving local authority care will become homeless this year because the councils have 'abandoned their responsibilities', according to a report published yesterday.

Councils are not legally required to house young people who have been in their care beyond the age of 18, says the report published in 'Roof', Shelter's housing magazine.

Only about 30 councils are finding homes for young people leaving care.

Poverty

The vast majority of those leaving care are living on the margins of poverty — up to 80 per cent are unemployed or on youth training schemes, says Shelter.

The report urges the Commons Social Services Committee, which is convening a working party to consider revisions in the law, to ensure that care-leavers get a better deal.

Shelter says a young person in the care of the London borough of Lewisham will receive a 'leaving care' grant of £500 to help with the cost of setting up home at 18.

But care-leavers in Trafford receive what the report describes as 'a derisory' £17.50.

THE MINERS' STRUGGLE

'EXPEL SCABS' – Demand by lorry drivers

SCOTTISH road haulage drivers are demanding that scabs who are breaching miners' picket lines be thrown out of their union.

FROM SIMON PIRANI

The call to expel the scabs will be made at the Transport and General Workers' Union regional committee meeting on July 22 at Maryhill, Glasgow.

The road haulage men, staunch trades unionists, are incensed that drivers have careered through miners' picket lines waving TGWU membership cards.

'As far as the road transport and commercial trade group is concerned, we are 100 per cent behind the miners,' Jim McGrail, one of the drivers' representatives on the TGWU regional committee, told News Line.

'Our feeling, and that of the vast majority of our members, is one of disgust. These people are not lorry drivers, they are scabs.'

McGrail added that his members believe that, not only are the police allowing the scab drivers to blast through built-up areas at high speeds, but the Department of Transport is also turning a blind eye to law-breaking.

'One of these men was on the TV claiming he had started from Carlisle, picked up coal at Hunterston, taken it to Ravenscraig and gone back to Carlisle. That's impossible under the tachograph regulations,' he pointed out.

The route from Hunterston terminal in Ayrshire to the Ravenscraig steelworks has been the focus of the fight against scabbing. As soon as the miners' strike began, local National Union of Mineworkers' strike committees were demanding that their leaders enact the 'triple alliance' and stop coal going into 'the 'Craig'.

Attempts

Constant attempts were made by Scottish NUM officials to reach a compromise with right-wing steelworkers' leaders on the issue.

They failed, railwaymen stopped coal supplies to the plant — and the scab lorries began to run, protected by Scotland's biggest-ever police operation. Hundreds were arrested at Ravenscraig and Hunterston; one morning 292 pickets were jailed when six busloads were stopped on the A80 at Stepps.

An uneasy truce was reached when Scottish NUM leaders agreed that coal sufficient for 70 per cent production could go in to the plant. It was not to last: attempts to reach a national agreement with the steel unions broke down, and again the coal trains stopped running.

This was a signal for the scab lorries to come back. A host of non-union hauliers joined the notorious Yuill and Dodds of Strathaven on the Hunterston-Ravenscraig run; some lorries re-painted to avoid identification, all fitted with wire-mesh windscreens.

Last week TGWU full-time official Bill Brand carried out an inspection and found that 120 vehicles were in continuous use supplying Ravenscraig. (Brand was cautioned by police for speeding on the M8 motorway as the scab convoy, which he was attempting to overtake, sailed by).

Only 70 TGWU members were scabbing, Brand told News Line. Many non-union men were being taken on.

'We have 18,000 members in the road transport and commercial trade group. If 70 of them are refusing to carry out union policy, that can be dealt with.

Develop

'My personal opinion is, that if this dispute had to develop any further, the next step could come from those TGWU members who distribute diesel fuel.'

Fuel supplies to Yuill and Dodds and other hauliers had already been cut off, explained Brand. But the British Steel Corporation was now arranging for vehicles to re-fuel inside the Ravenscraig plant itself — and this could be the target of future action.

Brand added: 'The enemy is this government. If Thatcher had put as much energy into sinking pit shafts as she did into sinking the "General Belgrano", this conflict would never have happened.'

The scab lorry drivers are not the only ones encouraged by the right-wing frenzy of steel union leaders over Ravenscraig. Seven weeks ago, attempts by the Hunterston dockers to stop coal supplies getting ashore were scuppered by blatant scabbing.

ISTC members, who operate cranes at Hunterston, went into the holds of the Norwegian ship Obo King to unload coal — work which clearly belongs to registered dockers.

TGWU officials obtained a half-hearted 'it won't happen again' pledge — sweetened with a £1000 donation to charity! — from the Clyde Port Authority. But when the dockers walked out on strike again this week, the CPA and British Steel boasted that they would get coal through Hunterston anyway.

The fight against scabbing is inseparable from the campaign for a general strike, to bring the whole working class on to the offensive against Thatcher, to deal her dictatorship a powerful blow.

The Communist Party Stalinists, who dominate the trade union bureaucracies in Scotland, have opposed the general strike call. They have sought to leave the miners fighting on their own, while other workers are limited to one-day protest actions and financial collections.

There is a chain reaction linking the Stalinists' cowardly class-collaborationist politics and the scabbing.

The Stalinists' 'softly softly' approach, and their constant attempts to appease the right-wing over Ravenscraig, encouraged ISTC leaders to spit in the face of basic trade union principles. This in turn gave heart to the scabs now descending on Ravenscraig like (well-protected) bees around honey.

Reaction

Scottish trades unionists have experienced the effects of this chain reaction before. The so-called 'victory' at Upper Clyde Shipyards, organised by the Stalinists, led to 'no-strike' deals, sackings — and encouraged the multi-nationals to bring 'hire and fire' type contract labour to the Clydeside.

Similarly, the Stalinists' refusal to fight for Kinneil colliery in West Lothian, and their months of silence over the outrageous anti-union witchhunt at Polmaise, encouraged Macgregor's sidekick Albert Wheeler in his campaign of intimidation against the Scottish miners.

It therefore comes as no surprise that, following the 'exclusion' of 14 TGWU members for crossing picket lines at Llanwern steelworks in south Wales, hesitation about expelling scabs came from the Stalinists' direction.

Scottish TGWU district secretary Hugh Wyper, a leading Communist Party member, stressed in a TV interview that the union wished to try and 'educate' its members at difficult times such as these, rather than using disciplinary measures.

Wyper should be reminded that the best kind of education is action. The firmer the action against scabbing, the more educational it will be — as was demonstrated so clearly by the determined stand of this week's NUM conference at Sheffield.

The Workers Revolutionary Party's industrial department, the All Trades Unions Alliance, fully supports the demands that the scabs be expelled.

At the same time, the campaign for the organisation of the general strike must be stepped up: this is the only way forward for the working class in support of the miners, against the crisis-ridden Thatcher regime, and in the struggle for power.

Scab lorries, protected by massive police contingents, have been defying Scottish miners' pickets for the last 17 weeks

'Nowhere are the class antagonisms more sharply defined than between the miners and the ruling class. They run deeper than any mine shaft in the country.'

Crucial to understanding the struggle of the miners today, this pamphlet analyses the decline of the coal industry in the course of this century. Tracing the history of the struggle against closures and increased exploitation, it shows why only socialism can solve the crisis, and examines the problems of leadership in the miners' union.

Enter Maxwell

MIRROR Group Newspapers is the largest newspaper publishing group in the capitalist world. The combined weekly sales of its six mass-selling titles is in excess of 35 million.

Today this vast newspaper empire belongs to one man — Mr Robert Maxwell. With breath-taking speed he has taken over the group which publishes the 'Daily Mirror' (3.3 million daily), 'Sunday Mirror' (3.3 million), 'Sunday People' (3.4 million), the 'Sporting Life' (75,000) and two Scottish papers, the 'Daily Record' (740,000) and 'Sunday Mail' (98,000).

There have been howls of indignation in some reformist circles. They are shouting 'foul play' over Reed International's sale to Maxwell and its abandonment of the public flotation on the stock exchange.

The argument is that the Mirror group's 'independence' would have been guaranteed by going public. But whether the paper is owned by Maxwell's Pergamon Press, or by individual and institutional investors, it remains a capitalist newspaper under capitalist ownership and capitalist control.

The sale to Maxwell is itself a stunning example of the capitalist market at work. Abbey National chief Clive Thornton came to the Mirror six months ago to prepare the public flotation of the group.

The draft prospectus gives the company a potential asset value of around £50 million. Maxwell stepped in last week with a £70 million bid. When this was summarily rejected by Reed International, Maxwell upped his offer to more than £100 million.

This amounted to twice what Thornton was offering through a public float on the stock exchange. It was an offer that Reed could not refuse — and didn't. Yesterday Thornton was out and Maxwell was in.

The Pergamon chief tried to buy the 'News of the World' 15 years ago; he made a bid for 'The Times' in 1982; earlier this year he tried to grab 'The Observer'; and last month he became the largest single shareholder in the 'Daily Express' group.

Now he has succeeded beyond his wildest expectations. He has not got one newspaper but six. This is by no means a new phenomenon in Fleet Street. It has always been dominated by rich, ambitious press barons ever since the days of the Astors, Northcliffes and Rothermeres.

Indeed, one-man ownership is the rule right up until the present day: Rupert Murdoch has five papers ('The Times', 'Sunday Times', 'The Sun', 'News of the World' and 'The Scotsman'), Lord Matthews has three ('Daily Express', 'Daily Star' and 'Sunday Express') etc etc.

For the labour and trade union movement there is one overriding sinister implication of the Maxwell takeover. Since World War II, the 'Daily Mirror' stable has been the only section of the Tory press to call for a Labour vote in every general election.

But with the emergence of Thatcher's Bonapartist dictatorship there is absolutely no place for a broadly pro-Labour paper. The Tory ruling class is clearing the decks to crush all political opposition.

It faces all the printing unions with the question of submitting to the Tory dictates of Messrs Murdoch, Maxwell, Matthews and Tiny Rowland, or organising to expropriate the capitalist press lords, refusing to give them a penny compensation and instituting workers' control.

This is the only way to protect jobs in the industry, cope with the introduction of technology and expand the major printing and publishing empires to the educational, cultural and informational benefit of the whole of society.

The implementation of these policies presupposes the overthrow of the outmoded capitalist order, the smashing of the state machine and the introduction of a socialist planned economy under a Workers Revolutionary Government.

Print workers, as with workers in every other industry, now face political struggles involving the struggle for power. That is why it is high time to join the Workers Revolutionary Party.

NORTH-EAST miners will be joined by striking colleagues and other trade unionists from all over the country at the famous Durham

Open invitation to join march

TENS of thousands of miners and other trade unionists will rally in Durham today for the miners' gala — traditionally the largest in the British coalfield.

For the first time ever an official invitation has been issued to all trade unionists in the north east region to take part and show solidarity with the miners' strike.

The marchers assemble at 10a.m. at The Sands before demonstrating through the city to a mass rally at the Racecourse. There they will be addressed by NUM president Arthur Scargill, Labour Party leader Neil Kinnock, NUM general secretary Peter Heathfield and Bolsover MP Dennis Skinner.

A special place in the demonstration will be reserved for 25 strikers from Welbeck Colliery in Nottinghamshire who have marched all the way to Durham to demonstrate their determination to win the fight against closures.

They were guests of Spennymoor Council last night after completing their 140-mile march.

Miners from Cortonwood pit, whose closure sparked the five-month strike, will also be near the front of the march. They too were given a warm reception last night when they arrived in Durham.

At least 7,000 police are said to have been drafted into the city and NUM officials have been told by police chiefs that the large contingents of miners will have to leave the city by 3p.m.

BORDER

MORE than 1,000 miners marched from North Derbyshire over the county border into Nottinghamshire yesterday to join a mass picket outside Warsop Main colliery.

But after some miners had forced their way through, police reinforcements were brought in and they proceeded to attack the strikers, arresting at least 40 of them.

A wooden fence was ripped out and strikers hurled stakes at the police to stop them charging into

● South Derbyshire miners are to be invited to attend a series of pithead meetings to see if they are prepared to stop scabbing and join the strike.

This was agreed yesterday by the area NUM executive after a meeting of its officers in Swadlincote was picketed by strikers.

Pension go-ahead

COAL BOARD representatives of the mineworkers' pension scheme were given the go-ahead by a High Court judge yesterday to resume their investment programme — despite the NUM's refusal to appoint nominees to the management committee.

Justice Mervyn Davies granted a temporary injunction to the five NCB trustees allowing them to form their own quorum of four members until the NUM can be represented in court next Thursday.

Until the next hearing the committee's powers will be limited to making investments in line with the 1982 investment strategy.

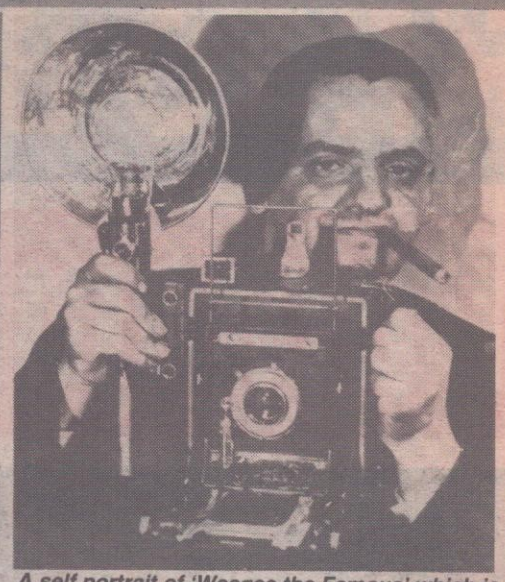

James Morritt, QC, for the NCB trustees, told the judge that yesterday's applications arose from decisions taken at NUM's Sheffield conference this week.

The WRP presents its policy: Case for Community Councils

EVERY trade unionist and worker must come to the aid of the miners in their struggle for jobs against the capitalist state, the Thatcher dictatorship and the National Coal Board.

The working class as a whole and their professional allies must share the burdens and sacrifices of the fight which the miners are waging in defence of the most basic of rights — the right to work and to organise freely in trade unions independent of the state.

Trade union branches, shop stewards' committees, trades councils and other labour movement organisations must take the initiative now in the setting up of Community Councils which will act immediately to meet the needs of the miners.

Thatcher and the state are out to smash up pit communities, driving families into destitution and starving the miners back to work. Their aim is not only to destroy the miners' union, but all trade unions.

Miners are, therefore, fighting on behalf of the whole working class. They cannot be left to shoulder the burdens of the strike alone. All workers must ensure that the miners can continue the struggle under the best conditions, and that a common front is presented to the class enemy.

As well as the trade unions, the Community Councils must draw in representatives of every section of the working class and their middle-class and professional allies involved in the anti-Tory fight — miners' wives, youth groups, voluntary organisations and local Labour councils.

At the very same time the Tories are attacking the miners, they are also establishing a central government dictatorship over local Labour councils, threatening cities like Liverpool with financial destruction and abolishing seven authorities covering the major industrial areas of England. Community Councils will take responsibility for the defence of local councils, jobs and services.

There are immediate and practical tasks which flow from the defiant resistance of the miners to the provocations of the NCB, an unprecedented military-style police operation directed by the Home Office through Scotland Yard and the organised harassment by social security, gas and electricity bureaucrats.

The Workers Revolutionary Party believes that the tasks of Community Councils, which should extend beyond mining districts, will be to:

- Provide food for families and children of those on strike. No miner to be starved back to work by the Tories.
- Pay urgent bills for electricity and gas, calling on workers not to carry out cut-offs as an act of solidarity with the strike. Raise funds for new clothing and footwear for strikers.
- Ensure that no miner is evicted by local councils for not being able to pay rent or rates. Make certain that medical supplies are paid for so that miners and their families can get the treatment prescribed.
- Arrange for the care of the elderly dependent on support from miners' families, ensure nursery provision so that miners' wives can participate fully in winning support for the strike.
- Organise the provision of free legal representation for miners who need it. Provide accommodation for miners from other areas.
- Watch out for and organise against provocateurs. Organise the defence of union offices and funds from state attacks.
- Rally other workers to support and back up miners' pickets and organise marches and rallies.

LABOUR COUNCILS must be asked to:

- Provide free school meals and transport for miners' children.
- Make office accommodation in council offices available to miners, with facilities for printing and communications.
- Make sure that no evictions take place because of mounting debts. Wipe out rent and rate arrears.
- Provide free public transport for strikers and their families. Make all council facilities available free to miners. Lay on entertainments and outings for miners' families.
- Resist having to foot the bill for the cost of the Downing Street directed police operation aganinst the miners' union.

This is the best way to answer the challenge of the capitalist state, and the Tory dictatorship. Community Councils — as Soviet-type organisations — will give the working class confidence in its own independent strength to defeat the class enemy and provide the basis for the successful struggle for power which has now been joined.

Cauthen to score on Straight Man

LUCA CUMANI'S decision not to run his unbeaten colt Torway in today's John Smith's Magnet Cup at YORK has given Dick Hern a great chance of lifting the prize for a sixth time.

The West Ilsley trainer whose most recent success in this valuable handicap was with Bedtime last year, saddles Straight Man (3.00) who looks nicely-weighted with 8st 11lb.

Second to Fire Bay on his seasonal debut at Haydock in April, Straight Man was then a convincing winner at Chester. Although the official winning distance from Chaumiere was only a head, there is no doubt this could have been increased if Willie Carson had ridden him out.

On his next, and only subsequent, outing, Straight Man finished three lengths behind Get The Message when favourite at Salisbury, but he appeared to be squeezed for room, and once he got clear finished very strongly.

Miramar Reef must have a good chance if reproducing his form of last Saturday, when he finished fifth to Sadlers Wells in the Coral Eclipse Stakes at Sandown. But that race was run at a false pace, and Straight Man, who this time will have the expert assistance of Steve Cauthen, is napped to come out best.

It should be a good afternoon for the American jockey, who should earlier score on Persis (2.30) in the Harp Lager Handicap.

Bill Watts's gelding ran really well in the Britannia Handicap at Royal Ascot and it is expected to continue his return to form.

THE YOUNG PRETE

MATS WILANDER . . . Chasing Borg's crown

Sweden produces a bunch of players vying for Borg's crown

SWEDEN is reaping the rewards of Bjorn Borg's eight-year reign as king of the tennis world.

Inspired by Borg's success, young Swedish men players now pepper the top of the rankings list and disappointment over their recent failure on the grass courts at Wimbledon was tempered by the success there of 22-year-old Carina Karlsson.

'I think Bjorn Borg has meant more to Swedish tennis than the average tennis fan could fully realise. His success was so enormous,' Swedish Davis Cup team captain Hans Olsson said.

'Bjorn's success boosted the interest in tennis in Sweden, and inspired our young players to set higher goals, using Bjorn as an ideal,' Olsson explained recently in an interview.

Sweden had a few internationally recognised players before Borg's entry on the world tennis stage. But his meteoric rise — winning the Italian and French Opens when only 18 — boosted interest in tennis from Federation down to club level.

'We were lucky to have the organisation to meet the raised demand as youngsters came in hordes to become tennis stars,' the non-playing captain said.

'There is so much money in the sport now and the sponsors mean a lot to its development. Even juniors who are not fully developed as players can find a sponsor,' Olsson added.

Mantle

This rush of interest in the sport meant that there was a clutch of young Swedes ready to take over Borg's mantle when he retired from top-flight tennis in 1982.

BY A TENNIS CORRESPONDENT

One of the youngest — and certainly the most successful — has been Mats Wilander, a 19-year-old right hander who is currently ranked No.4 in the world behind Americans John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors, and Czechoslovak Ivan Lendl.

Wilander was the youngest-ever winner of a Grand Slam event, at 17 years and 288 days, when he took the French Open in 1982.

His quiet approach to the game, and his success, drew immediate comparisons with Borg. But Wilander was adamant — 'I'm not Borg No.2. I'm Wilander No.1,' he said.

The fair-haired Wilander won nine tournaments last year, improving his ranking three places from No.7, and was the star of the Swedish team which lost to Australia in the Davis Cup final at the turn of last year.

Defeats

But this year Wilander's position as Sweden's No.1 has been threatened by defeats by Henrik Sundstrom and Stefan Edberg, the latter at 18 leading a bunch of teenage pretenders to Wilander's throne.

Edberg last year won the junior French, Wimbledon, US and Australian titles to complete the first-ever junior Grand Slam while the 20-year-old Sundstrom this year won the Monte Carlo tournament.

Other top Swedish stars include Anders Jarryd, 23 this month, Stefan Simonsson, 24, and his younger brother Hans, 22. Little wonder then that Olsson believes he can win the Davis Cup this year.

'We have to beat Paraguay in a quarter-final which I think we will. Then we have a semifinal at home against the winner of the Czechoslovakia v France quarter-final,' Olsson said.

For the Paraguay match Olsson is fielding a new Davis Cup doubles team with Jarryd and Edberg, who won the doubles title in Hamburg last May.

Last year Jarryd won the French Open doubles title with Hans Simonsson, but they failed to defend their title this year.

'This new doubles team has high potential, but I'm taking it one meet at a time,' Olsson said.

Hope

Sweden's women players remain thin on the ground but Karlsson's hard-hitting Wimbledon success, where she reached the quarter-finals, gives hope for the future.

Today's Swedish stars have based their success on the qualities which took Borg to five consecutive Wimbledon titles.

The greatest assets of Swedish players are patience, persistence and very strong will-power, Olsson added.

He said Swedish players have now developed their game from the baseline top-spin style of Borg, using slice fairly frequently when it was unknown in Borg's game.

Percy Rosberg, Borg's trainer 10 years ago and the man behind Edberg, says the two players have enormous talent but a different temperament makes them play a different style of tennis.

While Bjorn had a stronger forehand and moved better on the court, Stefan's serve and volley are stronger than that of Bjorn when a teenager, the trainer said.

But despite the glittering future in prospect for Swedish tennis, Rosberg believes today's stars will never rise to the heights reached by his former pupil.

'I will not live to see a Swedish player do what Bjorn did, but it is possible that Mats (Wilander) or Stefan (Edberg) could become the world No.1 in a few years,' he said.

BJORN BORG . . . His success has rubbed off on the Swedish youngsters

DAVIS CUP ROUND-UP

Lendl beaten by Leconte

FRENCH Open champion Ivan Lendl crashed to a surprise defeat at the hands of France's Henri Leconte on his return to the Czechoslovak Davis Cup team in Hrdec Kralove yesterday.

Lendl, who lost a gruelling semi-final against American Jimmy Connors at Wimbledon last week, was beaten 6-3, 8-6, 6-4 as France took a 1-0 lead in the World group quarter-final tie.

He had been left out of the two previous ties with the USSR and Denmark while under suspension for playing in an invitation tournament in racist South Africa.

Strength

While Czechoslovakia were at full strength again, France were without their top player Yannick Noah who is still troubled by the groin strain which forced him to miss Wimbledon.

Lendl had warned that the match could be tougher than his fans expected. 'Leconte is unpredictable and is capable of defeating anyone on his good days. I have lost twice to him before,' Lendl said.

Lendl served 12 aces but failed to muster the strength needed to crush Leconte, who defied a slight shoulder injury. The Frenchman, who served only three aces himself, broke Lendl's serve five times and chased around court to good effect.

AUSSIES TAKE COMMANDING LEAD

PAT CASH reproduced his impressive Wimbledon form and John Fitzgerald sustained his fine Davis Cup record to put holders Australia on top against Italy in Brisbane yesterday.

Wimbledon semi-finalist Cash beat Claudio Panatta 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 while Fitzgerald provided the day's best tennis to win the opening singles against Gianni Ocleppo 6-3, 6-1, 4-6, 6-1 as Australia took a 2-0 lead in their World group quarter-final clash.

Australian Davis Cup captain Neale Fraser can relish the prospect of today's doubles with the knowledge his combination of Mark Edmondson and Paul McNamee are unbeaten in the competition.

The Italians fought pluckily but Australia's experience on grass was clearly evident on the pressure points.

Fitzgerald, whose only defeat in nine Cup games was a dead singles rubber to Sweden's Mats Wilander in last year's final, was too strong for the luckless Ocleppo, who lost his chances in the first set.

Nerves

Fitzgerald survived a 41-minute first set which could have gone either way and put his nerves behind him by racing through the second set in 22 minutes.

Ocleppo fought back and took the third set in 38 minutes, only to let slip his chance of drawing level when he lost the fourth game of the fourth set and Fitzgerald seized control.

'If I had won the first set it would have gone to five,' a disappointed Ocleppo said afterwards. 'I had six break chances but he played four unbelievable shots and had the other two.'

Cash was brutal in his victory over Panatta, although the Italian showed glimpses of causing an upset after taking the second set.

Cash had to contend with a 42-minute rain stoppage and a greasy court before clinching success.

OZAKI TAKES OVER

NOAMICHI OZAKI, one of three Japanese golfing brothers, shot a four under par 68 to capture the lead in the £110,000 Lawrence Batley international tournament at the Belfry yesterday.

No British golfer has ever won a major event on this course and 28-year-old Ozaki, nicknamed 'Joe' — his elder brothers are 'Jumbo' and 'Jet' — is now on target to make it six victories in succession after taking a one-shot lead from Scotsman Sam Torrance with one round to play.

Total

Ozaki was amazed by his six under par total of 210 on such a difficult course — but it will be no surprise back in Tokyo. Since his marriage last March to Yoshie, Ozaki has improved his golf out of all recognition.

This season he has claimed his first two tournament victories in ten years as a professional and now leads the Japanese money lost with some 28 million yen or, in British money, about £90,000.

He has entered for next week's Open Championship at St Andrews but will only compete if, as now seems almost certain, he gains one of the ten exempt spots available from this tournament.

Mittee's second chance

BY A BOXING CORRESONDENT

SYLVESTER Mittee, who never quite hit it off in his first professional career, is aiming for the sky in his second.

Mittee, the 27-year-old Bethnal Green social worker, hopes to earn international recognition by defeating former world light welterweight champion, Perico Fernandez of Spain, in a 10-round welterweight fight at Bloomsbury this afternoon.

Absence

It will be his fifth fight this year after an absence from the ring of nearly 18 months.

The high spot of Mittee's professional boxing campaign so far is to have reached a British light welterweight title fight — which he lost to Clinton McKenzie — in March 1981.

Fernandez, who held the world title 10 years ago, and was only recently beaten in a European championship fight, would provide Mittee with a good name on his record — especially if he wins well.

It is a fine chance for the Londoner who is dedicating himself to the extent that he has already used up his 1984 holidays, training for the four previous fights on his comeback trail.

'It's going to be a working summer,' says Mittee, 'but at least I shall have a chance to have a mental rest.'

Mittee still has time to make his mark on the British welterweight division, which isn't overendowed with progressive talent.

Stronger

But he is punching harder since he left the lightwelters behind and appears to have developed a stronger motivation, too. So beating a former world champion would be an impressive way to end the season.

El Gran Senor withdraws

EL GRAN SENOR, the English 2000 Guineas and Irish Sweeps Derby winner, was found to have a bruised foot after work yesterday and has been withdrawn from the King George VI Stakes and Sussex Stakes by his trainer Vincent O'Brien.

Trainer O'Brien said last night: 'El Gran Senor will be out of work for some days. I expect his next race will be the Benson and Hedges Gold Cup.'

Fans

The news will come as a great disappointment to racing fans, who had been hoping to see the great Northern Dancer colt atone for his Epsom failure by tackling some cracking milers at glorious Goodwood — including the horse he beat into second place at Newmarket, Chief Singer.

Many pundits gave Chief Singer a chance of gaining revenge on El Gran Senor following his impressive victory in the July Cup at Newmarket on Thursday.

But Chief Singer's trainer Ron Sheather admitted last night: 'I can't say I'm disappointed by the news, El Gran Senor is a great horse, and I'm not sure we would have beaten him.'

Hingsen resumes training

WEST GERMANY'S decathlon world record holder Juergen Hingsen resumed training yesterday after dislocating his back last Wednesday during practice for the Los Angeles Olympics.

Hingsen, 26, whose battle for Olympic gold with Britain's Daley Thompson is expected to be one of the highlights of the Games, said he was fully recovered from the injury which occured when he fell awkwardly on landing during high jump training.

Skipper Sundstrom

IVAN LENDL . . . Surprise defeat at the hands of Henri Leconte

HENRIK SUNDSTROM justified his promotion to Swedish No.1 by beating Victor Pecci of Paraguay 6-3, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4 in the opening match of their World Group Davis Cup quarter-final in Baastad yesterday.

Sundstrom was given the chance of leading his country after compatriot and world No.4 Mats Wilander withdrew because of a wrist injury.

The second singles between Anders Jarryd and Francisco Gonzales was delayed by rain.

A strong baseline game gave Sundstrom the first two sets but Pecci won the third easily when his attacking tactics finally paid off.

Sundstrom moved 4-1 ahead in the fourth set but allowed his opponent to level 4-4.

Three successive aces in the ninth game gave the Swede the lead from 0-3 down and then he broke Pecci with his first match point in the 10th when the Paraguayan netted a volley.

WHAT A LOT FOR PAUL!

WINDIES' NEW SPIN WIZARD

ROGER HARPER, the stealthy spinner amongst the West Indian bowling attack, yesterday claimed his best haul of the summer Test series with three for 47. Although his batting wasn't up to much, falling for a duck, he'll be looking to spin confusion around England in the second innings.

Selectors' faith repaid in kind

PAUL Allott brought the time-honoured virtues of line and length back to the English bowling attack as the West Indies were forced to struggle in the third Test at Headingley yesterday.

The marauding tourists were reduced to 239 for seven in reply to England's 270 and Allott was the levelling factor on the second day of another absorbing Test.

BY A CRICKET CORRESPONDENT

David Gower lost the second Test at Lord's because his attack simply bowled badly whilst the West Indies openers took full advantage of the opportunity scoring 344 to win handsomely on the final day.

That defeat cost young Essex paceman Neil Foster his place and yesterday Allott, ignored by the selectors for the last 22 Tests, stepped in to fill the breach with honours.

Allott's first five Tests yielded only six wickets at a cost of 69 runs each, despite being let down by an epidemic of dropped catches.

Accurate

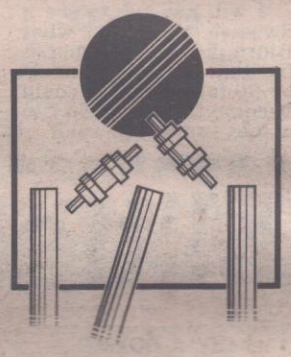

At Leeds yesterday he grabbed five for 42 in 20 probing and accurate overs as the West Indies, already injury hit, faced a little of something like their own brilliant pressure.

Allott's opening spell of 13 overs, bowling up the Headingley slope, cost just 24 runs as he accounted for Desmond Haynes, bowled by an inswinger, and the mighty Viv Richards, caught as he drove flashingly to wide mid-on.

With evergreen Bob Willis already having snapped up Gordon Greenidge, the tourists were in trouble at 78 for three. But straight after lunch the Warwickshire paceman showed that he too could err badly, when two of his overs brought the West Indies 37 runs.

Fortunes

Larry Gomes and Clive Lloyd revived the Caribbean fortunes in a fourth wicket stand of 70, but spinner Nick Cook had Lloyd caught at silly point for 48 and although Jeff

Dujon contributed 26, Allott returned to the fray with a devastating second spell.

In the space of seven deliveries Dujon was trapped lbw, Eldine Baptiste was caught at mid-off and Roger Harper was caught behind.

At 206 for seven the West Indies were on the rack knowing that Malcolm Marshall couldn't bat with his fractured thumb.

Sixes

Gomes, who reached 79 not out by the close and Michael Holding who struck two successive sixes off Willis, however took the tourists to within 31 runs of the England total, by stumps.

After the morning session England might have hoped for better. At 237 for six overnight, their chances of a respectable total lay heavily on the shoulders of Allan Lamb.

But the Northants man fell to the ninth ball of the day from spinner, Roger Harper, without adding to his 100 of Thursday.

Jamaican Michael Holding cleaned up the tail and achieved his milestone of 200 Test wickets and the 30-year-old revitalised paceman finished the innings with four for 70.

England hero Allott said afterwards: 'All I did today was to bowl straight. That was the job I was brought back to do.

'I am simply delighted to be back in the England side and even more delighted to take five wickets on my return. Since I last played a Test I have had two years' more experience and I would have had to be pretty stupid not to have learnt a lot in that time.'
